

it's radio, and i payed my money to hear what i want. No one has the right to tell me what i can and cannot listen on the radio, just b/c fm stations feel threatened. Maybe I would listen to fm radio again if there were less commercials and a better variety of music that i like. Xm radio has a constitutional right to say what they want, and if you don't like then, maybe you should lobby to take away free speech all together. Xm is the way of the future, deal with it!-Amy Jo Retucci, Fredericktown, PA
